DESCRIPTION

The Morrison Regional Library, located in South Park Charlotte, completed a major renovation adding approximately 2,700 SF to the facility which supports more group meetings, a higher capacity community room with Smartboards, and an improved teen's and children's area. An enhanced entrance, rear patio, and second floor terrace added exterior space.

Beth Ravitz, a multi-disciplinary artist from Florida, has transformed the Morrison Library's second floor terrace into an inviting, contemplative space through the creation of two wall relief sculptures and a dramatic paver design. The graceful forms of the wall reliefs represent the unbridled joys and sense of adventure that can be experienced in nature as well as books. To further this theme, the artist collected museum patron's favorite quotes from North Carolina authors, poets, and songwriters, and included them in her design. The terrace paver pattern takes its inspiration from the layout of formal gardens, and example of which can be viewed from the terrace. These elements work together to affirm the bond between art, nature, and culture.
